Good Credit Is a Precious Thing

Considers Issue of Drafting 18-19 Year Olds

Washington (AP)—President Roosevelt approached a decision Monday on the issue of drafting youths 18 and 19 years old for the nation's fighting services calling in Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, to talk over the problem.

Roosevelt had taken no position publicly on the question of drafting youths in this age group who are now exempt from selective military service.

Hershey pointed out that in every major war the country called on youths of 18 and 19 to augment its armed services.

Congress would be required to enact legislation if the present restrictions were lifted.

The Capital in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT
Washington—The Capital in Wartime.

Washington won't be the same for months, or years, to come. The rubberneck buses are gone—eliminated for the duration, but completely.

The rubberneck buses weren't quite as old as the Washington monument (they have only been around about 30 years) but they were almost as commonplace to the long-time capital resident.

It is less than two years since I interviewed William Bush, president of the Gray Lines company that operated the buses, and heard him predict that Washington was becoming the sightseeing, as well as governmental capital, of the nation.

He was right, too. The war in Europe had given interest in our own government a terrific impetus. That and the impossibility of European travel put the tourist figures here through the ceiling.

From almost sun-up to sundown, the company's 27 buses made various tours and sightseeing parties off facts about everything from the Navy Yard to the Bureau of Standards.

But recently the very thing that boomed the rubberneck business—war—brought its collapse. Gasoline and rubber demands couldn't stand the gaff.

Washingtonians are going to miss the big buses with their loads of gawkers. They're going to miss that exercise of the ego which the sight of a loaded bus always gave them—the privilege of tossing a scornful thumb at the rubbernecks and muttering to whoever happened to be in hearing, tourists. It never occurred to many that the tourists, coming in from their rubberneck jaunts, probably knew more about most of the interesting points in Washington than a lot of the city timers.

I live just across one of the big bridges that span the canyon of Rock Creek Park and had crossed it every day for more than a year, yet it wasn't until I took a rubberneck bus ride that I found out it was called "Taft bridge" and why.

If this war goes on and on, who is going to tell us these things?

Mr. Bush is folding his company and, being a very young man, is planning to go into the Army. I hope, however, he'll hire a vault and store away those spels that the rubberneck guides have been rattling off for so many years.

They had a lot of facts and figures that I couldn't find in the guidebooks.

Royce Weisenberger at Camp Barkley

Camp Barkley, Tex. — First Lt. Royce Weisenberger, Hope, Ark., reported for duty at Camp Barkley on May 30 and was assigned as assistant camp intelligence officer in the corps area service unit here.

Before entering the military service, Weisenberger was an attorney for the War Department at the Southwest Proving Ground, Hope, Ark.

French Warned From Coast in Invasion Hint

London (AP)—The British radio broadcast instructions to the French people Monday to evacuate a broad coastal area from the Belgium into the Spanish border which strip the Germans have designated as prohibited military zone.

"Operations of capital importance for the liberation of France will start in due time," the broadcast said.

"It has been shown on several occasions that the presence of the civilian population on the scene of active operations hinders the action of troops and particularly of friendly troops in a very grave manner," the broadcast beamed across the channel in the regular French language news program.

British sources said they could not interpret the bulletin that it would have to stand for itself.

Coastal regions of France are likely to become more and more a theater of war operations the warning continued.

"They will inevitably bring with them the gravest dangers to the civilian population."

The radio referred to Notice No. 1, however, which was broadcast after the commando raid on the German U-boat base at St. Nazaire, March 28, when Frenchmen in that city took up arms and fought for three days after the British had departed.

That notice instructed Frenchmen to preserve themselves for the day when a formal call is issued for help of the French nation.

Sevastopol Is Goal of Nazis

By the Associated Press

The Russian-German conflict centered Monday at Sevastopol, Crimean naval base which has fought off German siege for seven months.

With the Germans controlling the Kerch Peninsula and other Crimean territory Sevastopol is the Russian's last stronghold there.

For three days it has withstood intense land and air assaults and exacted from the enemy a heavy cost for his effort to reduce it. The Russians reported Sunday a one week score in planes shot down of 528 German craft against 191 Russian losses.

Apart from the Sevastopol sector the battle of Russia lapsed once again into small scale fighting.

Deferment of U. S. Clerks Hit

Washington (AP)—Chairman Tydings (Dem., Md.) of a special Senate committee recommended over the week-end that the Selective Service System check up on draft deferments given 1,000 young male employees of the government.

Tydings said his group, which is looking into general conditions in the executive branch, was considering holding open hearings of the question of draft deferment because of federal employment. He said of preliminary investigations.

"On the whole deferment privilege has been judiciously used by most agencies of the national government but the abuses we have found stick out like a sore thumb."

He cited the case of "Mr. X" 21 years old when he was appointed a year ago to a $1,620 a year job in an unidentified department.

"Nine months later," Tydings said, "he had become such an expert in the field of 'personnel procedure surveys' that he was promoted and his salary raised $1,000 a year. Further, four months after his appointment he had become such an indispensable cog in the administration of this department that it was necessary to have him deferred, and six months later, not being able to replace this highly indispensable 21-year-old expert, it was necessary to obtain a further deferment. This was the claim of the department for which he worked."

"This seems to us clearly an abuse of the deferment privilege. He is not even a college graduate, which is unusual; he has never been employed other than a student before entering the government service."

Tydings said "Mr. X" was only one of 12 personnel officers who were granted deferment out of a total of 42 clerical employees in the one departmental unit.

"Now the deferments of these so-called 'personnel officers' can be claimed or granted, because they are indispensable, rare or scarce, is incomprehensible," he said. "To say that the work of this group is so demanding and requires such unusual abilities is ridiculous."

British Tighten Grip on Axis in Libya Fight

Cairo (AP)—The great tank battle in the Libyan desert roared into its 14th day Monday with British and their Free French allies apparently holding the upper hand after repulsing new Axis attacks at Knightsbridge and Bir Hacheim.

The British reported their artillery fire had smashed another attempt by Field Marshall Erwin Rommel's columns Sunday to break through toward Tobruk, 15 miles northeast of Knightsbridge.

At the same time a communiqué said the Free French at Bir Hacheim threw back a tank assault at that bastion menacing the right flank of Rommel's forces.

It was the second time in as many days that the British had reported the Axis chieftain repulsed in an attempt to breakthrough at Knightsbridge.

Military quarters said that the Axis mechanized forces still were being reinforced through the gap in the British mine field but it was believed that their lines of communication were severely strained under the continued pounding of British bombers.

It appeared that the British were trying to force a strong semi-circle around Rommel's forces east of this gap preparatory to an attempt to cut the Axis leader off from the rear.

Japan Denies Use of Gas

Tokyo (AP)—Tomokazu Hori, official Japanese spokesman, denied Monday that the Japanese were using poison gas against the Chinese. Japan has never used poison gas so far and does not intend to use it unless international laws are violated by the enemy, he declared.

(President Roosevelt asserted at his press conference last week that he had information the Japanese were using poison gas and that unless Japan refrained from its use the United States would use gas against Japan.)

(China frequently has charged Japan with the use of gas.)

New Well Guaged at 21 Barrels

The McClain producer of the Midway Oil field, brought in over the week-end, was guaged Monday at 27 barrels per hour on a quarter-inch choke.

It was erroneously reported by the Star last Saturday that completion of the well extended the field one mile. Actually the story meant the well was located one mile from the discovery well.

The Spencer-Gunter No. 1 C-SW-56 Section 5-15-24, was drilling at 6155 feet Monday.

The Powell No. 2, C-NW NW of section 10-15-24 was drilling at 3320 feet. Three new locations were still rigging up Monday.

Senate Votes $54 Pay Increase for Privates

Washington (AP)—The senate voted Monday to increase the minimum pay in armored forces to $50 monthly, to raise that of first class privates and corresponding naval ratings to $54 and to make all pay increases effective June 1.

Action came on a motion of Senator LaFollette (Pro., Wis.) to return to conference a military pay adjustment bill and to accept house amendments.

The motion was adopted 58 to 20.

The new federal tax stamp for motor vehicles will be placed on sale at the local Postoffice June 10, Robert Wilson announced Monday.

Postoffice authorities here urged that local automobile owners purchase their stamps early and avoid the last minute rush.

Japs to Occupy 9,000 Acres

San Francisco (Official U. S. Release)—A Center for relocation of Japanese evacuated from military areas on the Pacific Coast will be established near Rohwer, Desha county, in Southeastern Arkansas. Lieutenant General J. L. Dewitt, commanding general, Western Defense Command and Fourth Army announced here.

Selection of the site in the Mississippi River bottom lands was predicted upon absolute military necessity, General Dewitt stated. "In satisfaction of which relocation of evacuees in Federally supervised projects inland is imperative."

The relocation center in which these Japanese will be placed will be under the supervision of the War Relocation Authority, which has the duty of relocating for the war period, the persons of Japanese ancestry it was necessary to remove from the Pacific area. The center will be protected by military police.

The site was owned by the Farm Security Administration. The tract is undeveloped. It contains approximately 9,000 acres of bottom land, covered with small timber and brush and requiring considerable developing. However, the rich alluvial soil deposited by the Mississippi, coupled with the ability of Japanese to develop raw lands and bring these into fertile yields is expected to result in a permanent improvement of the tract which will multiply the present value of these lands.

The land, federal reports declare, will produce a wide variety of crops. The Japanese farmers and gardeners have been very successful in their agricultural activities in Washington, Oregon and California.

Japanese who are to populate this Arkansas center are largely American-born Japanese, educated in American schools, and American citizens. They were removed from their former homes through military necessity, and largely for their own protection. They were moved by the Army to assembly and reception centers, and the Japanese have given cheerful assistance before and during the movement, as well as since arrival in the centers.

Nazis Execute 83 Belgians

London (AP)—The Belgium government in exile announced Monday more persons have been executed by the Gestapo in Belgium than were put to death by the Germans in the last war when 250 fell before firing squads.

A spokesman said the names of 83 persons executed including three women and an 11-year-old child have been published by the Nazis but "we know of many times this number."

New Bill Asks for Full Parity

Washington (AP)—Two senate agriculture committee members drafted a bill Monday to provide mandatory loans at full parity prices on cotton and other basic agricultural commodities.

In view of the low and constantly declining prices of the grains and of cotton, Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) and Russell (D., Ga.) sponsors of the bill said:

"It is evident that without a parity price floor it will be totally impossible for producers of the basic crops to receive parity prices in market for their year's work."

High School Band Pictures at Star

Japs Retreat After Having 14 Ships Hit

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

Pearl Harbor (AP)—A once-mighty Japanese naval force reported to constitute the bulk of that country's seapower Monday limped westward in desperate retreat from Midway Island, its once-proud units pounded by American defenses turned into a shattering offense.

Enemy withdrawing

The enemy appears to be withdrawing, said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet.

Contact was lost during the night but even should the Japanese make good their escape it will be only at a cost of at least three warships sunk, 11 or more others damaged and virtually complete destruction of their protecting air arm.

U. S. Loses Destroyer

Against this score the only American losses were one destroyer sunk by a submarine, one aircraft carrier hit by a bomb and some planes missing.

The lost U. S. Destroyer's crew, Admiral Nimitz asserted, was picked up by other ships with a small loss of life.

The three-day battle seemed nearing its finish in what was likely to be the greatest single victory of American naval history.

400 Papers in Army Camps

By JOHN GROVER

Wide World Features Writer

Washington—When Pvt. Joe Anybody joins the Army, he keeps one civilian trait—he still likes to see his name in print.

Four hundred Army newspapers ranging from typewritten handbills to ambitious journals edited by ex-professionals—are keeping Pvt. Anybody and his 2,000,000 comrades posted on the goings-on in their military "home towns."

Morale officers say the camp newspapers are doing a whale of a job keeping the soldiery perked up. A rookie begins to throw off its initial homesickness when he begins to read about his own company or his own regiment. Then he's part of something real. It's like seeing the name of his old firm or his old college.

From then on, they're regular readers of the camp paper, and better soldiers. There's a squawk if any outfit is missed in distribution of the sheet.

Putting out a camp newspaper is a job to make a civilian publisher go quietly nuts. The ordinary problems of publishing are multiplied manifold. The Fort Meade "Post" is a typical camp paper, under the supervision of Major Francis E. Lutz.

Here are some of the problems Maj. Lutz recalls the "Post" has had to take in stride.

First, the old "who, what, where, when" basis of journalism must be revised and pruned. "Who" and "what" are all right, sometimes, but "where" and "when" are out most of the time. Pvt. Anybody might send a copy of the camp paper home, and proud Ma Anybody would probably show it to her bridge club. That means the whereabouts of the Uptenth division on such-and-such a date could become common talk in Berlin.

School Apportionment Is All-Time High

Little Rock (AP)—The Board of Education distributed $1,446,984.30 in common school funds Monday on a basis to $2.35 per pupil setting an all-time per capita record of $9.21 for the 1941-42 school year.

The apportionment last year was $7.39 per pupil.

Hempstead county was allotted $23,028.65.

Labor Needed in Orchards

A recent survey made by the U. E. Employment Office and county and farmer organizations and shippers shows that hundreds of women and men and young people are needed at once in the orchards of the Wenatchee and Okanogan Valleys in the State of Washington.

This district is facing the greatest labor crisis ever known, with the grave possibility of losing a vitally needed fruit food crop.

The farmers of this district are appealing to farmers, schoolteachers, older people, students, and others, to come to Wenatchee, State of Washington, and help. Starting at once is the thinning of apricots and apples, followed immediately by picking of cherries, apricots, pears, and fall season apples. Packing season for the pears and apples lasts well into November. Experience is not necessary and wages are excellent.

Senator McNary of Oregon is quoted as saying that the Fuel and Rationing Division of the Office of Price Administration had cited provisions of the Rationing Act that permit issuance of sufficient gas to itinerant workers. The applicants, the message stated, will not have to submit evidence that no alternative means of travel is available.

Enjoy a vacation with pay. This world-famous orchard district is in the center of one of the world's greatest outdoor playgrounds. Fishing and camping are excellent. Enjoy this scenic wonderland and at the same time make big money.

It is not necessary to write the Wenatchee Chamber of Commerce — just come! Bring camping equipment if possible. We have every assurance that gas for fruit workers can be secured. Help the farmer win "Food for Freedom."

There's Some Crying Over Spilt Milk

Washington — A certain farm lady in Arkansas is kinda mad. When a year ago last March, the Department of Agriculture said this country was going to need every pound of dairy products that could be produced, this good farm lady decided to cooperate.

She would keep an extra cow, selling the milk to make butter or cheese or evaporated milk or whatever was not needed for the United Nations. Things went well last winter. Prices were good and every can taken to the road was purchased eagerly by the creamery route collector.

Then one day this spring, the good lady from Arkansas got a notice from the creamery that they couldn't buy any more milk from her. That's when she got mad. Here she was, milking an extra cow and nothing to do with the milk but feed it to the pigs. And the British were supposed to be starving. Was this stuff about wanting all the milk America could produce, the bunk?

The lady from Arkansas got mad. She wrote a letter to the President about it, so she did, and she wanted to know if this was the way to run a war?

chiselers would get away with murder while the patriotically cooperative held the bag.

But if rubber continues to be wasted as it is now, even a democracy may be driven to adopt some modification of this plan.

About the same time the lady from Arkansas was sounding off, thousands of other dairy farmers were keeping extra cows to help with the war were receiving similar notices. They didn't all write to the President, but they were just as mad. Stories began to appear about millions of gallons of milk being fed to the pigs or just dumped, and the War Production Board and the Department of Agriculture began to catch unshipped hallelujah for not figuring things out better in the first place and not providing enough equipment to evaporate or dry all this milk, or make it into butter. It looked like a national scandal in the cow barns, and a lot of crying over spilt milk.

Too Much Spring

Investigation by your old reliable, however, seems to indicate that the predicament shared by the farm lady from Arkansas and her milk is accounted for by several factors.

First reason is Spring—the kind of Spring the poets rave over, but as far as a cow is concerned, Spring means green grass, and green grass means more abundant pasture, and m. a. p. means more milk. In the dairy industry this is known as the flush season. So come Spring, the cows all over this bright land began to give more milk than they had been giving just because they couldn't help it. A veritable Niagara of milk. A dash and mysterious William Talcott had marched at the head of a squad of four to, of all places, the fire hose. He had opened the cabinet and, in the presence of the squad, removed therefrom a bulky envelope. Then the squad had right-faced and marched into Cabin K, and marched right out again. But without the envelope.

And it was much more puzzling when the cause of all the trouble, Mr. Talcott, had his turn and came face-to-face with the young captain. The startled passengers saw the supposed embezzler-murderer and the stiff Army officer in a combination bear-hug dance and Sioux Indian reunion, complete with war cries.

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

By EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

THE PROFESSOR MOVES

CHAPTER XXIV

BRILLIANT sunshine, as if relenting for the storm, splashed the decks of the Blue Petrel as Bill Talcott sat in a deck chair and told June Paterson, for the twentieth time, that he didn't know how he had come to be in Martha Swenson's cabin. She was beginning to believe him, too; probably she had all along, but you wouldn't have known it from the frigid way in which she endured his presence. She was about to speak now when Halsey came along.

Halsey dropped into a chair and sighed, blowing out his lips in exasperation. "Swenson still sticks to the same story," he said. "Claims she didn't know Webber, didn't know of him, had never seen him before the night he came to her here on the ship. She says that Webber, or von Stampf, take your choice: anyhow, bald-head frightened her half to death. Knew her right name, which incidentally is Swanzig; described her father down to the last wrinkle and threatened to put the screws to him unless she played along. Her job was to compromise Talcott so he wouldn't dare open his head; as if you, you poor dumb brute, weren't sufficiently compromised already."

Talcott squirmed. "Cut it out—it was a fool stunt, her starting that argument with the doctor and making so much noise she brought the whole ship down on her ears. It made me clean forget Webber's threats."

June Paterson sighed. "I guess you don't understand women. Which brings to my mind that despite the fact Mr. Webber hasn't been caught, I'm still unscathed. I wish I could bring myself to believe that you were as doped as you claim."

Halsey grinned. "You've been lucky, my pet. And you've had a big seaman trotting at your heels like a spaniel for the last two days."

"Yeah," Talcott said. "Where does he go when you sleep?" "That's for you to find out, Mr. Casanova!"

From the companionway Captain Pringle's square figure loomed. A radiogram was tucked in his huge fist. His eyes twinkled pleasantly and he said, "I see everybody's on speaking terms again. You'll be interested to know, Talcott, the pin that doped you also cured my ship's physician. Some kind of stuff South American Indians use in hunting. It paralyzes the game and they walk up and finish them. Thought you'd like to know," and his eyes twinkled briefly as they rested on June Paterson.

"Thanks. No sign of Webber?" "None. There must be some place on this ship I don't know about, unless he finally did jump overboard. If he's still aboard, we'll get him when the immigration lineup starts. We'll be in at 4 o'clock. Despite the storm, we've made a record run, I believe. We're going to have quite a reception. Half the Army. But here, you might as well read your own messages."

"Probably from Saint Thomas about some woman you left stranded," June Paterson sniffed.

TALCOTT rubbed his nose. "Sorry to disappoint you. It's from your esteemed cousin. He says that one Jerome K. Winters is considerably embarrassed to discover that his newest and most efficient secretary is a Nazi agent—serves him right! And Lowell says he'll be on hand with a squad of picked men to finish our unfinished business."

"Which reminds me," Halsey said. "Is that darned report still safely hidden?"

"Safe as a church. Unless a fire breaks out."

Halsey looked puzzled. "A fire?" he gasped.

Talcott chuckled. "It was just one more unscheduled thrill for the passengers of the Blue Petrel. As if a hurricane, a murder and a Nazi agent running around loose weren't enough, the Army had to take over the business of landing."

And take over they did. Not at the pier, but in quarantine. At least 20 of them; clear-eyed young chaps who looked and acted as if they knew exactly what they were about. Led by a lean, wiry young man whose uniform bore the insignia of a captain. He stood at an impromptu desk in the main lounge, asking questions and performing an inspection which slowed down the immigration line to a snail's pace.

Other strange things were going on, too. For instance, a sad-eyed, sad-faced man who had taken over Cabin K with the full consent both of the late occupant, Mr. Leonard Halsey, and the ship's captain, Seth Pringle. There had been some kind of mysterious business in which the Mississippi of milk, a Gulf of Mexico of milk. It flooded the creameries and the evaporating plants and left them swimming the Australian crawl from churn to cheese plant. Second came the rubber and gas shortages. Creameries that had been sending their pickup trucks on routes both far and wide discovered they had to conserve tires, and they had to drop off their more distant customers.

Third was the price factor. To encourage the production for export of evaporated milk, which is whole milk with about three-fourths of the water removed, it had been given a favorable price position on the market as compared to the price paid at the creameries. Then with shipping and containers becoming a little tight, the price of butter was raised to encourage more production, and the flow of milk was switched back to the creameries.

So, all things considered, with more cows producing more milk than ever before, with the evaporating plants working at capacity, with Creameries swamped and with not enough plants completed for the production of the comparatively unknown product of dried whole milk, things are in kind of a jam and it's no wonder that farm ladies from Arkansas are writing letters to the President.

Still Some Hope

The situation is declared to be far from hopeless, and the proper authorities are trying to do something about it. Department of Agriculture experts still insist it's impossible for this country to produce too much milk. Every pint of it will be needed.

There may be some temporary, local disturbances, but these reports of milk being dumped into the field are said to be nothing more than the dumping of whey, which is practically all water, after the curds have been taken off for use in the casein manufacturing plants. It can't be dumped in the rivers because it pollutes the stream.

Even if the skim milk does have to be slopped to the pigs for a time, the farm experts say there's no harm in that, for there's a shortage of fats, too, so the piggies can do their bit by converting this excess milk into lard. Neat trick, that.

What's a Mere Bomb in This Situation?

London — You can't frighten 50 Mayfair business girls, members of the Women's Home Defense Corps, with live bombs. But mice are different. The girls got on fine at handling a live bomb during a drill but when a cat gate-crashed the lecture with a live mouse in its mouth these "commando girls" leaped screaming onto their chairs.

12 Safety Rules for Swimmers

By NEA Service
New York—Twelve safety rules for swimmers and bathers are listed by Robert E. Lavenga, president of the National Physical Education Society of the Y. M. C. A., in an effort to lower last year's heavy toll.

"Six thousand persons drowned in the United States in 1941," Lavenga comments. "Most of the accidents could have been avoided."

Here are his warnings and tips:

1. After the winter lay-off take your swimming in easy doses. You may not be as good as you used to be.
2. Don't take foolish chances. Many fatal accidents result from horse-play in deep water.
3. Walk out and swim in. That way you'll never get beyond your depth.
4. Don't swim alone. Always have a water-buddy, preferably a swimmer stronger than you are.
5. Swim only at a supervised beach or pool.
6. Don't go in the water soon after a meal.
7. Don't dive until you're sure how deep the water is. The other fellow may not need as much as you.
8. It's not brave to give or take a dare. It's downright silly.
9. Stay out of canoes and row-boats if you can't swim. If a boat turns over while you're in it, cling to it for support.
10. Learn artificial respiration. It may mean the difference between saving a life and losing one.
- 11—if you can reach a person in trouble with a pole, belt or towel, do so. It's more sensible than jumping in.

12. In making a rescue, use a boat if possible. It's safer than swimming.

Natives Trap Save Shells For Jap

Juneau, Alaska —(AP)— Returning from a tour of 54 native schools in all sections of the territory, George A. Dale, associate supervisor of education for the Office of Indian Affairs, reports the natives are reviving their ancient fishing and hunting arts in order to conserve ammunition.

Wherever possible, he said, natives are taking game without the use of ammunition, and he quoted one old Eskimo as explaining "every time a seal is taken in a snare net, that saves one .30-30 cartridge for Mr. Jap."

Back to Nature

Honolulu — With wrapping paper scarce, authorities are studying the feasibility of going back to the old native custom of wrapping things in leaves of the ti plant.

About 25,000 tourists spent $4,000,000 in the Bahamas Islands during 1941, according to the Department of Commerce.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Proposed by the General Assembly and filed in the office of the Secretary of State on the 27th day of March, 1941.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND SENATE OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS, A MAJORITY OF BOTH HOUSES AGREEING THERETO: THAT THE FOLLOWING IS HEREBY PROPOSED AS AN AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS, AND THE SAME BEING SUBMITTED TO THE ELECTORS OF THE STATE FOR APPROVAL OR REJECTION AT THE NEXT GENERAL ELECTION FOR SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES, IF A MAJORITY OF THE ELECTORS VOTING THEREON ADOPT SUCH AMENDMENT, THE SAME SHALL BECOME A PART OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS, TO-WIT:

Section 1. Whenever in any county where there is located a public hospital owned by such county or by any municipal corporation, whether such hospital be operated by such county or municipal corporation or by a benevolent association as the agent or lessee of such county or municipal corporation, one hundred or more electors of such county shall file a petition with the county judge asking that an annual tax on real and personal property in such county be levied for the purpose of maintaining, operating and supporting such hospital and shall specify a rate of taxation not exceeding one mill on the dollar of the assessed value of real and personal property in the county. The question as to whether such tax shall be levied shall be submitted to the qualified electors of such county at a general election. Such petition must be filed at least thirty days prior to the election at which it will be submitted to the voters. The county judge upon the filing of such petition shall notify the county board of election commissioners thereof and the county board of election commissioners shall cause the question to be placed upon the ballot in substantially the following form:

FOR a ..... mill tax on real and personal property to be used for maintenance, operation and support of a public hospital.

AGAINST a ..... mill tax on real and personal property to be used for maintenance, operation and support of a public hospital.

Section 2. The election commissioners shall certify to the county judge the result of the vote and if a majority of the qualified electors voting on the question at such election vote in favor of the specified tax then it shall thereafter be continually levied and collected as other general taxes of such county are levied and collected. The result of the election shall be proclaimed by the county judge by publication for one insertion in some newspaper published and having a bona fide circulation in such county. The result so proclaimed shall be conclusive unless attacked in the courts within thirty days and after the election it shall not be competent to attack the result thereof on the ground that any signers of the petition were not qualified electors. The proceeds of any tax so voted shall upon the settlement of the collecting officer be paid by the treasurer of the county to the treasurer of such hospital to be used by such treasurer in the maintenance, operation and support of such institution; provided that any county where there may be more than one hospital qualified to receive the proceeds of such tax, the quorum court at its meeting for the purpose of adoption of the county's budget, shall provide for the apportionment of the proceeds of said tax between the institutions so qualified according to the respective needs.

Section 3. Whenever one hundred or more electors of any county having a hospital tax in force shall file a petition with the county judge asking that such tax be raised, reduced or abolished, the question shall be submitted to the qualified electors at a general election. Such petition must be filed at least thirty days prior to the election at which it will be submitted to the voters. The ballot shall follow, as far as practicable, the form set out in Section 1 hereof, and the result shall be certified and proclaimed as provided in Section 2 hereof and shall be conclusive in like manner. The tax shall be lowered, raised or abolished as the case may be, according to the majority of qualified electors voting on the question at such election, provided, however, that it shall not be raised to more than one mill on the dollar. If lowered or raised the revised tax shall thereafter be continually levied and collected and the proceeds used in the manner and for the purposes provided in Section 2 hereof.

Section 4. This amendment shall be self-executing and shall become a part of the constitution of the State of Arkansas when approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Fewer Footballers

Hollywood — The heroics of the gridiron are pretty tame beside the stories being written by young Americans on oceans and battlefields and skyways of the world. So there won't be many football pictures on the screen next fall.

Every studio used to whip up a couple or three pigskin melodramas for the autumn trade, but this year there are only two on the entire Hollywood schedule. Paramount is readying its usual musical which this time will be issued under the title of "Block That Kiss." Columbia has a script designed to utilize the services of Minnesota's Bruce Smith, of All-America fame.

This latter is easily the most unusual rah-rah story ever written. In fact, it deals almost exclusively with the studio's effort to devise a story for the football star. Right at the start you'll see Smith being signed by Columbia and then you will be cut in on a discussion between a producer and a writer.

Same Plot

The writer says there's only one plot for football pictures, and that is the one in which the previously discredited hero gets into the last five minutes of the big game and makes the winning touchdown just as the whistle blows.

The producer says no, he doesn't or contribution toward ultimate and complete victory. The club also plans its regular monthly meetings for the summer. They planned to meet at the Methodist church the first Wednesday in each month at 11 a. m.

want that. Instead, he orders the scenarist to go back to Smith's home town of Fairbault and get acquainted with the football marvel's family and old friends and youthful haunts. Out of this research, he believes, should come the pattern and facts for a good picture.

Then follows a curious narrative of the writer's visit to Fairbault, and of the writer's romance with a girl reporter. In the course of his research into the background of Bruce Smith, he sees a reel of home movies taken by a family friend, and those actually will be the only scenes showing Smith in action on a football field.

Dumbo's Rival

Picture patrons who see a new Merrie Melody called "Horton Hatches the Egg" are likely to figure that an astonishing dearth of plot material also has hit the animated cartoon field. Because this one deals with the birth of a little flying elephant, and there also is some circus background as a further reminder of Walt Disney's "Dumbo."

Actually, this Leon Schlesinger production is taken straight from Dr. Seuss' juvenile best-seller published in 1940, and the Schlesinger studio began work on the pink elephant named Horton months before "Dumbo" was released. The coincidence is remarkable, but there really is no essential duplication of story.

I saw some other shorts at the time the patient and faithful Horton was on view. In the newest Looney Tune, "Saps and Chaps," there's a shot depicting "the very early west," and to prove it the camera pans up on the Mount Rushmore monument to reveal the carved faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt as little boys.

The Japanese occupied the rice growing area of Burma just when the harvest was at its height, the Department of Commerce reports.
